15th. Bacon Creek Church is dismissed, to join the Goshen association.

16th. Queries from Bethel Church;—1st. would it not be expedient for the association to renew her former advice to the Churches of which she is composed, to shut their doors against disorderly preachers? Answer: Yes—and we recommend the Caution given by John in his second Epistle, as worthy of attention. "If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your houses; neither bid him God speed, for he that biddeth him God speed, is partaker of his evil deeds." 2d. And in order to prevent intrusion of impostors, would it not be advisable whenever a preacher is excluded from any of our churches, for the church of which he was a member to make report of his secession to the next association, and for the association to insert it in their Minutes? Answer: Yes.—3d. And would it not be advisable for Baptists to discountenance their preaching, by an entire non-attendance to their appointments? Answer: Yes.

17th. Corresponding letters called for, read, and Brethren appointed to bear them to Elkhorn association—Wm Davis and Samuel M-Kay, to Long Run; Isaac Taylor, Beall Dunsay, Thomas Linthecum, and Benjamin Lewis, to Russels Creek; Warren Cash, David Thurman, Isaac Taylor, and Joshua Morris, to South District; William Kendrick, jr, George Helm, & Isaac Taylor, to Green River; David Thurman, and Cornelius Lucas, to Goshen; Alexander McDugal, Warren Cash, Daniel Walker, Eneas Keith, Jeremiah Coe, and George Helm.

CIRCULAR LETTER.

DEAR BRETHREN—It is customary with us to write your Circular Address, the design of which is, to inculcate truth, forwarn you of approaching evil, or to stir you up to the performance of some important duty. Fellowship is indispensably necessary, for the peace, prosperity, and felicity of any society; without which, it cannot stand. The great Washington, in his address to congress, concerning the United States, observed, "United we stand, divided we fall," which precisely coincides with the observation of our Lord, who says, "a house or a kingdom divided against itself cannot stand." Considering, therefore, the utility of fellowship, we will offer a few reflections on those things which are calculated to promote it.

1st. The maintenance of a system of sound doctrine; for any member of a church to hold pernicious sentiments or deny any essential Gospel truth, is in effect to destroy his fellowship with his brethren; we know that differences do exist amongst the most affectionate brethren, but not in cardinal points, to deny the total depravity of man.

The divinity of Christ, his atonement for sin, the imputation of his righteousness, the necessity of regeneration in order to faith, the final perseverance of the saints, the eternal glorification of the righteous, or the everlasting punishment of the wicked, is heretical, and tends finally to break the fellowship of brethren, for those who maintain any of them. We are not, however, unapprised, that there is a prevalent spirit which is too conciliatory to false tenets; a spirit of peace is desirable, and ought to be cultivated when consistent with unity of faith in the great fundamentals of christianity; we should however never indulge a disposition to compromise with erroneous opinions, but contend earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints.

2nd. The conduct of professors of religion, should be exemplary, in order to keep up fellowship—they ought not only to abstain from all appearances of evil themselves, but also, restrain their children from it as much as is in the compass of their power. When professors of religion act immorally, or are accessory to the wickedness of their children, they thereby lose in a greater or less degree their seats in the affections of their brethren.

3d. Earnest study to keep peace and unity is likewise requisite to fellowship. When differences exist between brethren, others ought speedily and diligently to make use of the most friendly exertions to bring them to an adjustment of their difficulties without the least appearance of partiality to either or any of them.

4th. Sincere endeavors to prevent each other stumbling, have a considerable influence in maintaining fellowship—if we discover a brother about to commit an act that would forfeit or injure his standing in society, we ought to forwarn him of the danger, and exhort him to desist.

5th. There is nothing that tends more to the peace and fellowship of a church, than the proper management of that unruly member called the tongue—to be frequently harping on the real or supposed improprieties of brethren has a great tendency to wound their feelings, and produce discord in society. We too often neglect to attend to the advice of our Lord, in Matt. 18 Chap. 15, 16, 17, verses by which many churches have been wrecked—if any of us have hitherto acted otherwise, let us in future adhere to the good counsel of our Lord, who never erred—and when we hear evil reports of our brethren, it is likewise necessary to speak of them cautiously, endeavouring to converse of them not as though we delighted to have something to say of the wickedness of our brethren, but mention in which duty requires it, with every mark of tenderness, that the nature of the occasion will admit.

6th. Steadfast continuance in the worship of God, is important in maintaining fellowship—it is our duty and privilege to fill our seats on days of church business and preaching, and when brethren neglect to attend their meetings, the other members when thinking seriously of it, conclude that one of the following causes, viz—(they do not love their brethren, their preacher, or the doctrine delivered by him) must certainly be the grounds of their absence, and consequently, the fellowship of the church is marred—but where all regularly fill their seats with strict attention to preaching and church business, peace, harmony, and felicity, greatly abound amongst them.

Now may the great head of the church make you wise to discern between truth and error—to love the former and avoid the latter, enable you to live uprightly, shunning vice, and to bring up your children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord—to strive to keep the unity of the spirit in the bonds of peace, and to provoke each other to love and good works—may he also grant you the proper government of the tongue, and dispositions duly to worship the Lord—that peace and happiness, love and fellowship, may continue with you all.
Amen.
